

Chariots, Treasure and Power: Secrets of the Melsonby Hoard

Star Object PowerPoint

Image: A block of 88 fused iron and copper alloy objects.
© York Museums Trust (Yorkshire Museum).

Yorkshire Museum

Image: The cauldron. © York Museums Trust (Yorkshire Museum).

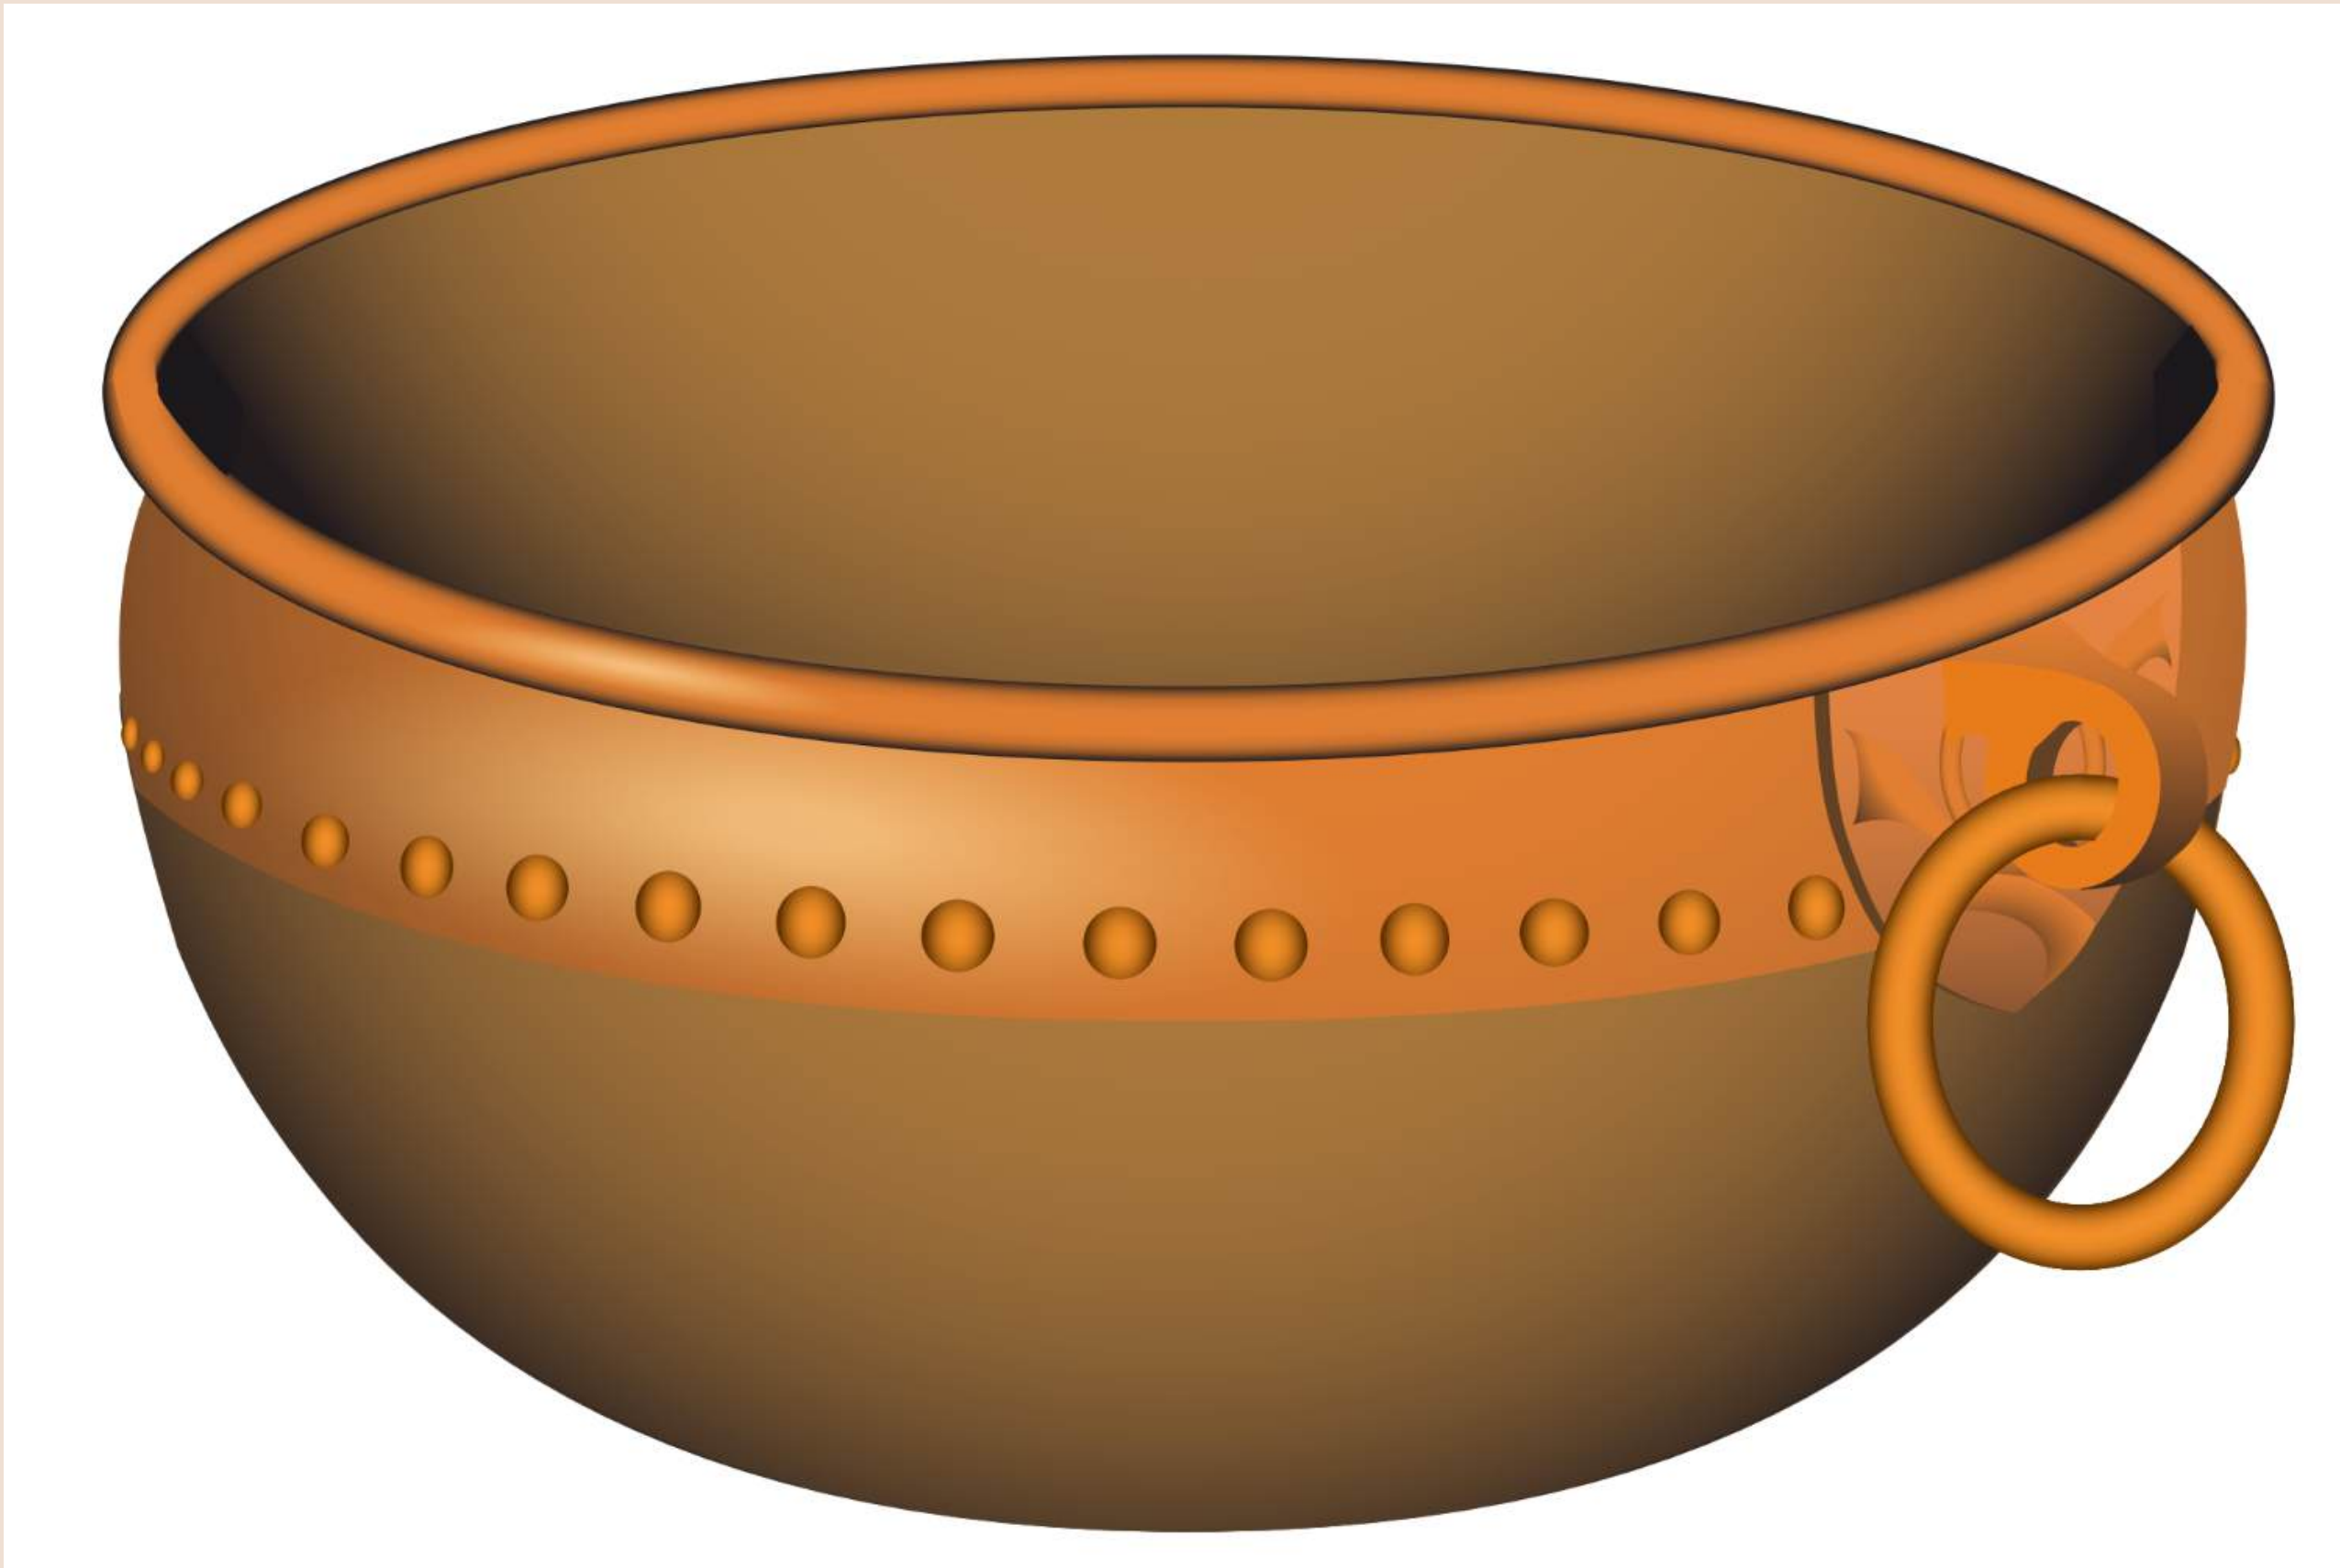

Image: This is what the cauldron may have originally looked like. © Image, Christina Unwin.

Image: Wine-mixing bowl. © York Museums Trust (Yorkshire Museum).

Image: This is what the wine-mixing bowl may have originally looked like.
© Image, Christina Unwin.

Image: Was the Melsonby Hoard buried by the Brigantes after a grand feast? © Image, Christina Unwin.

Image: Finials. © York Museums Trust (Yorkshire Museum).

Image: Horse harness parts. © York Museums Trust (Yorkshire Museum).

Image: Was the Melsonby Hoard buried after a festival in which the Brigantes paraded their decorated chariots and ponies? © Image, Christina Unwin.

Image: Three iron spearheads. © York Museums Trust (Yorkshire Museum).

Image: Someone holding a large spear would have looked very imposing.
© Image, Christina Unwin.

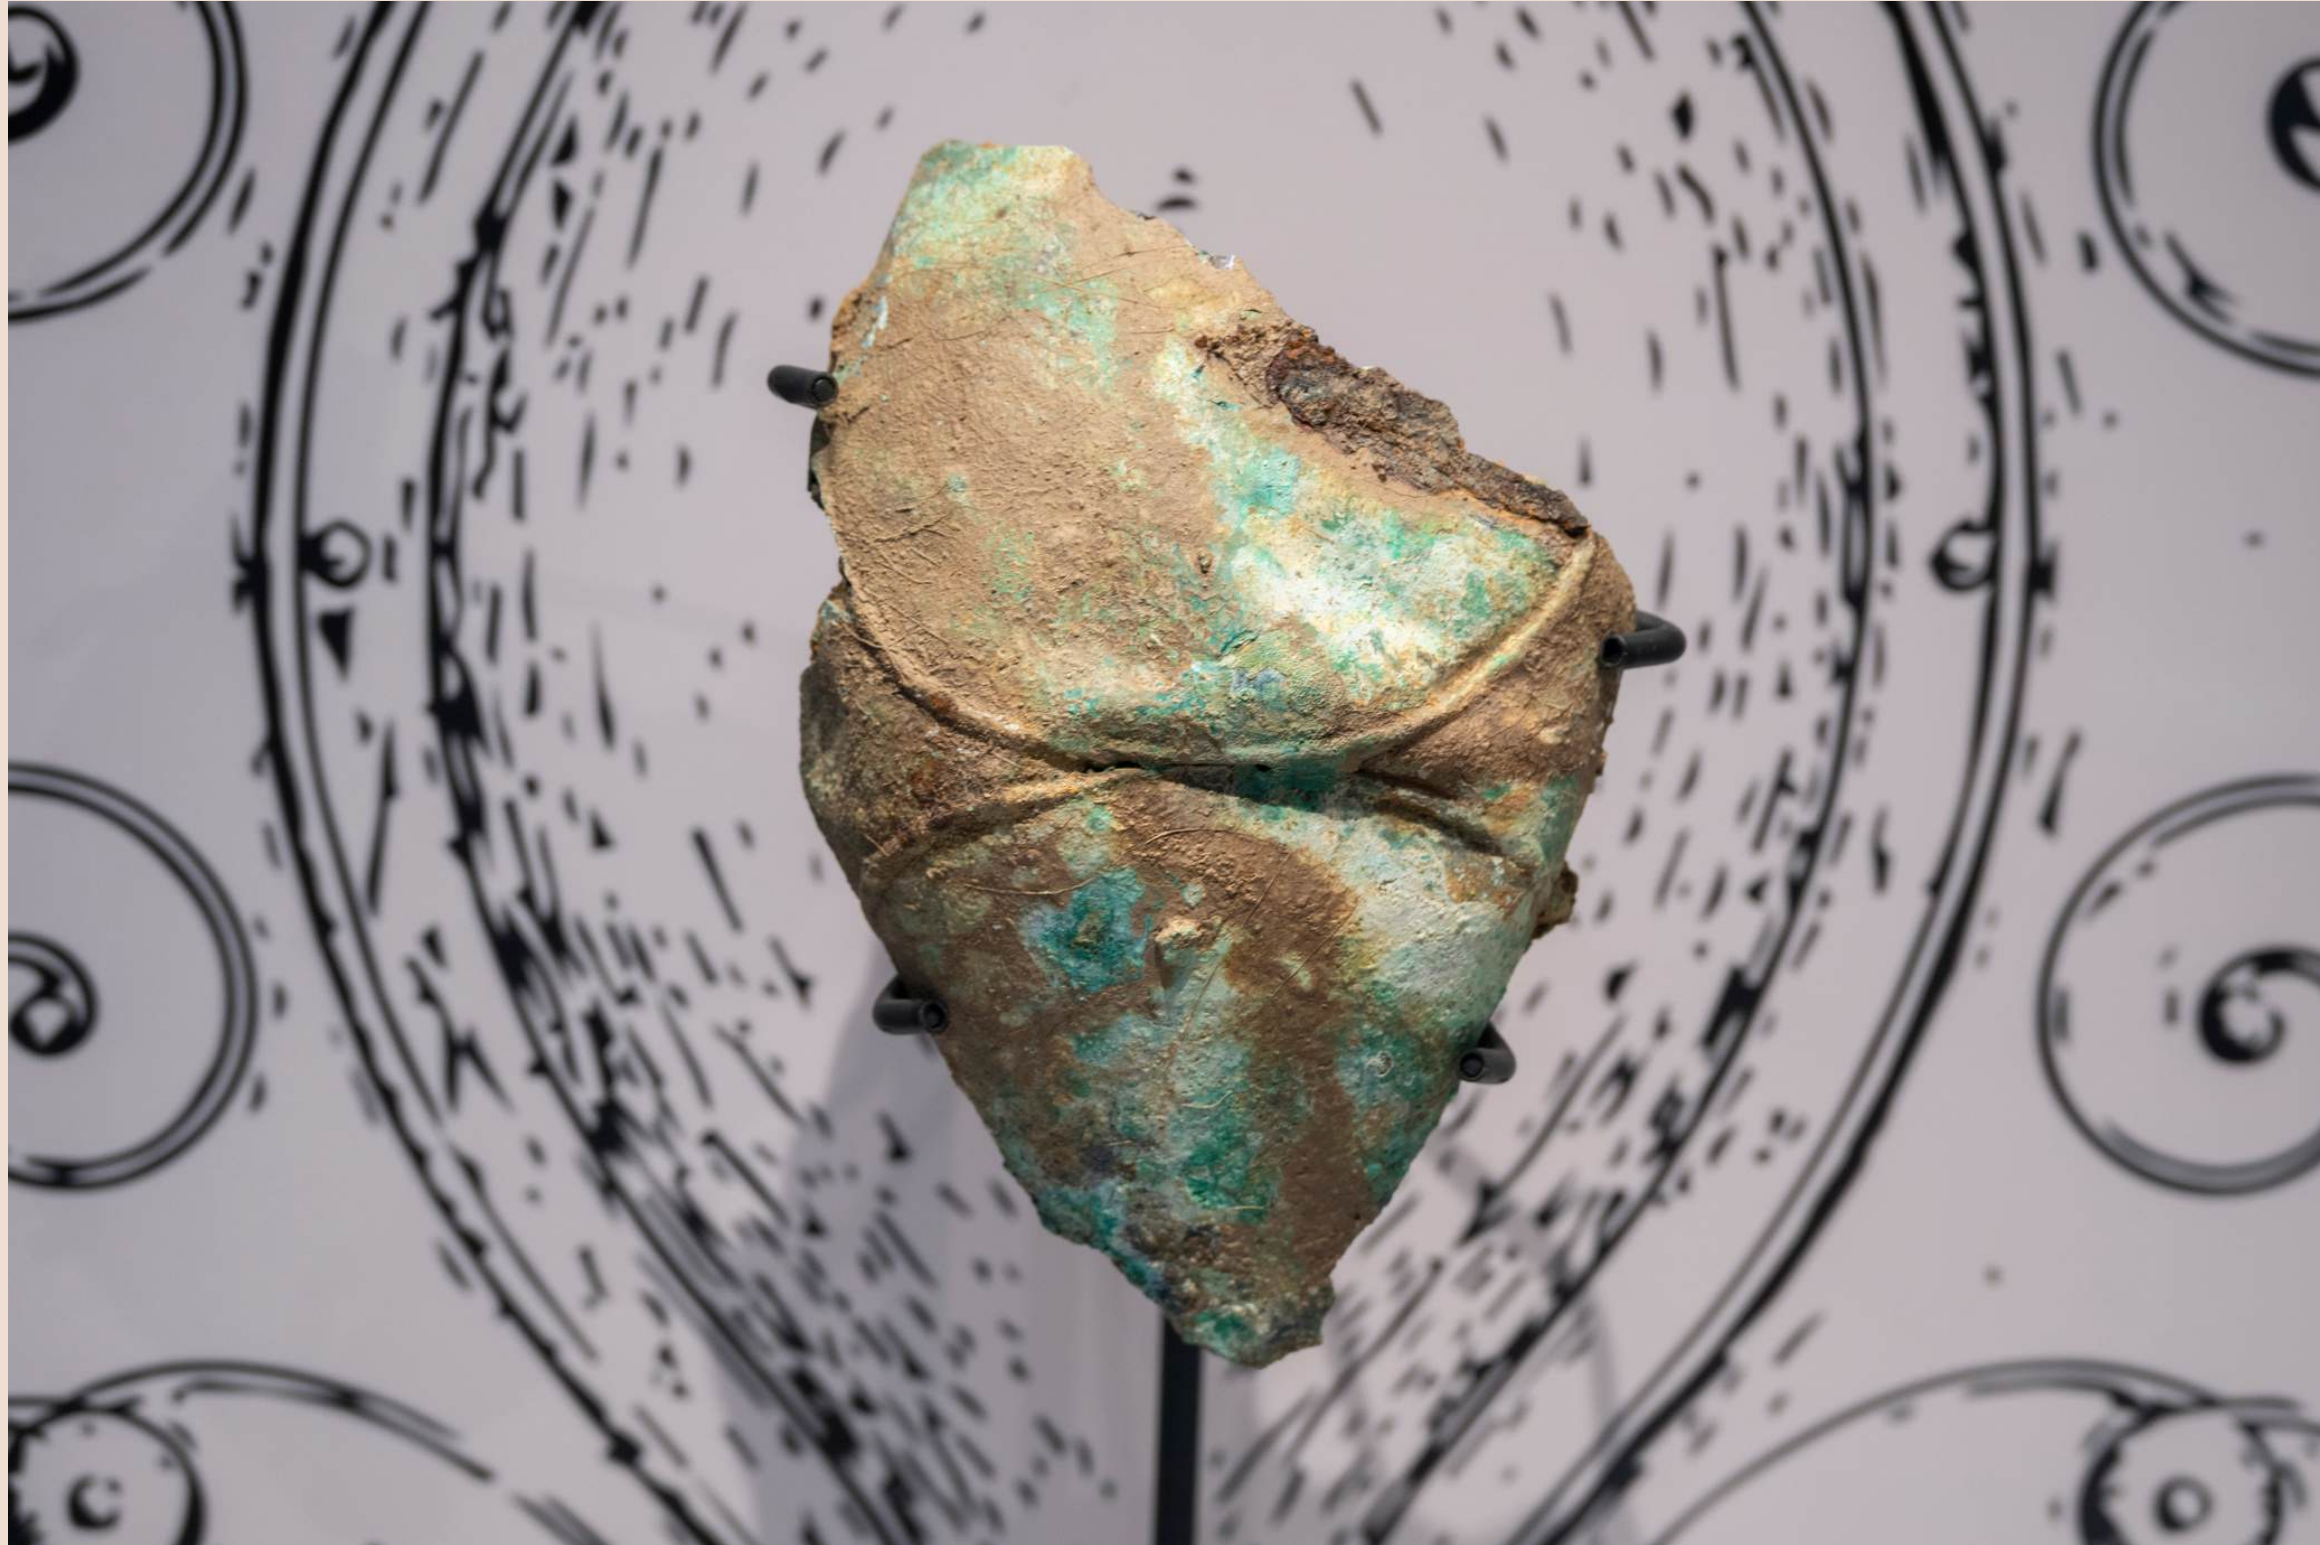

Image: Shield boss. © York Museums Trust (Yorkshire Museum).

Image: Iron mirror. © York Museums Trust (Yorkshire Museum).

Image: Harness fitting decorated with blue glass beads. © York Museums Trust (Yorkshire Museum).

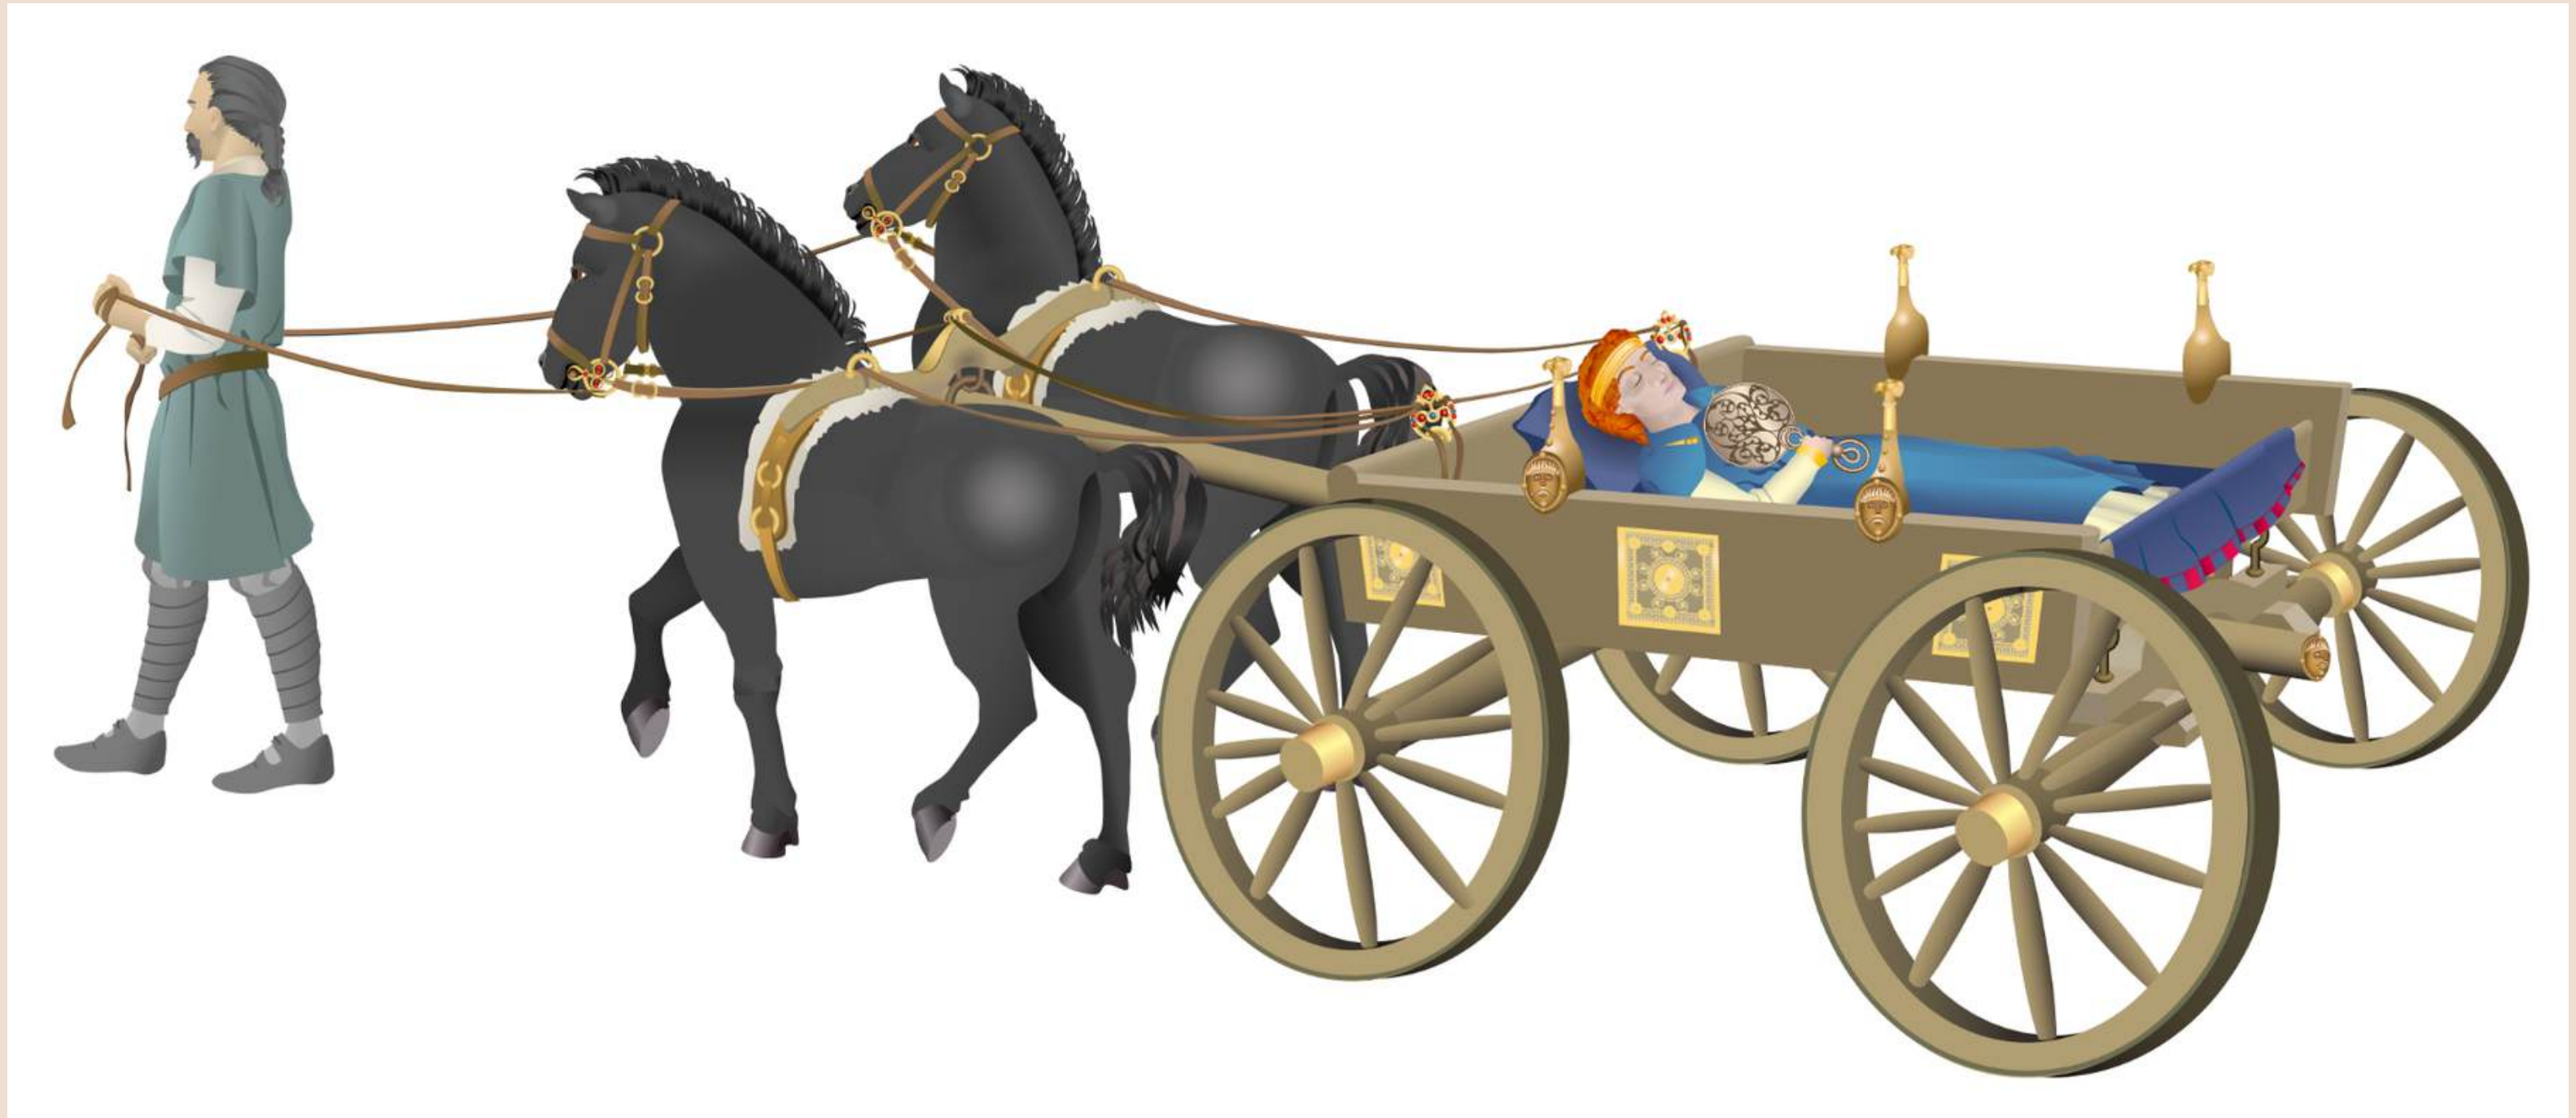

Image: Was the Melsonby Hoard buried as part of the funeral celebrations for a queen of the Brigantes? © Image, Christina Unwin.

Image: The Block. © York Museums Trust (Yorkshire Museum).